The US and the UK face similar challenges with respect to the critical role of defined contribution plans in retirement planning.

In their article for the Fall 2017 edition of Partnering Perspectives, Eversheds Sutherland (US) attorneys Adam Cohen and Brittany Edwards-Franklin and Eversheds Sutherland (International) attorneys Francois Barker and Tim Smith analyze how workplace defined contribution retirement plans have evolved in the US and the UK and provides examples of best practices in each jurisdiction.
Lessons From Across the Pond: Defined Contribution Retirement Plans in the US and the UK

continued